Tenth Anniversary of Ordinations

Two months after St. Mary's Academy and College celebrated the ordination of one of her alumni, Reverend Daniel Chavarria, several of her priest-alumni returned to celebrate the ten-year anniversary of their ordination.

Frs. Robert MacPherson, Patrick Summers, and Steven Webber, graduates of the Academy and College, along with their fellow seminary-graduate Fr. Trevor Burfitt, who had attended Immaculate Conception Academy in Post Falls, Idaho, held their own class reunion on April 14, in St. Marys, Kansas. They came from near and far to the small Kansas town. Fr. MacPherson arrived from his mission in the Philippines; Fr. Burfitt from Phoenix, Arizona; Fr. Summers from England; Fr. Webber from Kansas City, Missouri.

With a Solemn High Mass, the four priests celebrated ten years of the priesthood. Fr. Burfitt was celebrant with Fr. MacPherson serving as deacon and Fr. Summers as subdeacon and Fr. Webber as the master of ceremonies.

The district superior for the Society in the United States, Fr. Arnold Rostand, preached the sermon for the Mass. Gratitude—a seldom-heard theme for a sermon—was the focus of Fr. Rostand's sermon.

He called on both the priests and the faithful to offer prayers of thanks to God for the graces brought down by the priests and for the gift of the priesthood itself "because it is the vocation of the priest to receive from God, from the Church, and to keep it—to keep that treasure—and to pass it on to other generations," said Fr. Rostand. "It is in the nature of the priesthood to receive the gift, the treasure, to keep it faithfully, and to pass it on."

That treasure was the treasure of grace, of the Church, of the Faith. It is through the mystical unity of priest with God, the priest as another Christ, that this treasure comes.

"Being not anymore not only a child of God, like anyone who is baptized, but you became, by your ordination, another Christ, a priest of God, a mediator between God

Letter from the District Superior

Fr. Arnaud Rostand, the District Superior, recently gave an interview to The Remnant, the whole text of which is available on SSPX.org. We here provide some selections and encourage you to read it in its entirety online.

MJM: Ever since his election, Pope Benedict has made no secret of the high priority he personally places on healing the SSPX schism. What seem to remain uncertain, however, are his motives. Is it possible to ascertain the difference between the Holy Father's genuine desires to heal this rift for political reasons vs. an actual papal recognition (no matter how limited) of the legitimacy of the doctrinal objections raised by the SSPX?

FR: The reason why the Pope wants to resolve this situation is difficult to know. On the one hand, there seems to be a desire on his part to avoid a so-called schism. On the other hand, he is aware of the dramatic situation of the Church, which readers of your newspaper know all too well: open heresies professed by churchmen, sometimes touching the divinity of our Lord Himself, not to mention open rebellion, loss of faith, and disciplinary problems, whether in Austria, America, or Ireland. The Holy Father, I think, sees that the SSPX could be of some assistance in helping fight these real and all-too-prevalent problems.

Further, however, there is a mystery which I think is linked to the mystery of the Church which is at the same time human—that is made of men with their weaknesses and sins—but also divine; that is to say that Our Lord Jesus Christ still leads and works actively through and with men.

There are obviously human reasons for what is happening today in the Church and it is important to try to understand what the political reasons are for the different moves. A supernatural view of things, however, is much more enlightening.

MJM: Archbishop Lefebvre justified his decision to consecrate bishops against the will of the Holy Father in 1988 by citing a provision in the Code of Canon Law for extraordinary measures during a state of emergency in the Church. If rapprochement between the SSPX and the Vatican were now possible, would that mean that the Archbishop was overzealous in 1988, or has the state of emergency simply ceased to exist?

FR: No, the state of necessity in the Church does not depend on the Society of Saint Pius X, regularized or not. It can only be an objective situation of the Church. Today, this state of necessity still exists, as unfortunately too often priests and faithful cannot receive in a normal way the true teaching of the Catholic Faith or receive the sacraments in a safe way. You have priests and even bishops who profess open heresies, or accept and celebrate scandalous ceremonies.

The state of necessity will only cease when there will be objective reasons to entrust our souls to the clergy and hierarchy of the Church without any prudential protection.

MJM: I believe all sincere traditional Catholics long for the day when unity will be re-established in the Church and the SSPX can at long last shake off the unjust stigma of schism. Regardless of what happens in the days and months ahead between Rome and the SSPX, what can we laymen do to help promote unity within all the various camps of Tradition in a world at war with Christ and His Church?

FR: Pray. Pray a lot. The work that every Catholic can do is to pray for the Pope, for the Church, for His Excellency Bishop Fellay, and the Society of Saint Pius X. There is nothing more urgent to do. Never before have there been so many prayers, especially in the form of the Rosary Crusades; it is very encouraging. How could God abandon us?

Do not be disturbed by the rumors, especially the different gossips on the Internet, based on feelings but surely not facts. If you wish to have information you can sign up for the updates of the Society website (sspx.org), where you will be then the first informed of any development.

Let us entrust our prayers to the Blessed Virgin, follow the design of Providence, and beg the continued protection of the Good Lord.

and man,” Fr. Rostand said. “By your consecration, by the very fact that you were ordained priests, you have been put above others, above the children of God, not only by the sanctifying grace that we must all receive and must keep, but by a special character that changed your being, who you are.”

He therefore told the priests and the faithful to be grateful to God for these unique benefits brought on by the priests through their priesthood. “We must be especially grateful for having received what we have received,” the district superior said. “There are so few in this world who have received as much as we do, as much as we did. There is, therefore, a special gratitude that we must have. We must have a gratitude for all the instruments that God has used in passing on, in giving us what we have—our priesthood, the faith, the sacraments, and so on.”

He also called on the priests and the faithful to have gratitude towards Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre for passing on the Sacraments and the traditions he himself received; to the Society “which is an instrument used by God in the past decades and that will be used, we believe, until the time of the restoration of the Church.”

After the Mass, the priests and their families and friends celebrated further with a small reception. Fr. Kenneth Novak, stationed at St. Mary’s, toasted the four priests, calling on them to continue their work of charity.

Firstly, however, he praised the mothers of these priests. As the priest is another Christ, the mother of the priest is comparable to the Blessed Mother. “Blessed is the fruit of these women for what they bore,” Fr. Novak said, “so for those that are here, I guess that would make you blessed mothers.”

He then complimented the priests for their ten years of steadfastness to God’s service, to their mission as the fire-starters and fire-keepers of the fire of charity.

“There’s fire in the tabernacle, and that fire, somehow, ignites all of us,” Fr. Novak continued. “But if there’s not a priest there, that’s when the charity’s gone cold. And there won’t be any goodness, won’t be any justice, won’t be any mercy because we won’t have it. The priest is not there to put it there anymore. Without a priest, you will not have these things.”

Fr. Mackin's Boys

On Laetare Sunday, March 18, between the feasts of St. Joseph and St. Patrick, the Cleveland, Ohio, parish at St. Peregrine's was in harmony with the Church's words: "Rejoice, O Jerusalem!" On Laetare Sunday, Fr. Patrick Mackin, bringing with him nearly 20 boys from his Kentucky chapel, hosted a celebration of the feasts of the two saints. In his sermon, Fr. Mackin, using St. Joseph and St. Patrick as his models of manliness, spoke about the qualities of true manhood, the rarity of true men, and the need of true men in the modern world.

After the Mass, the parishioners gathered for food and games. The boys from both parishes, like knights in a joust, took to the football field. The game, even though it was called the "Rose Bowl," named after the liturgical colors of Laetare Sunday, was played in honor of St. Joseph and St. Patrick. The Cleveland boys took St. Patrick as their patron; the Kentucky boys fought under St. Joseph. As Fr. Mackin said, "The luck of the Irish paid off." Cleveland defeated Kentucky, 33 to 22.

The parishioners
enjoy some leisure
on Laetare Sunday.

Parents Conference in St. Marys

"Since everything must be referred to the law and mind of God, in order to bring about the universal and permanent restoration of marriage, it is indeed of the utmost importance that the faithful should be well-instructed concerning matrimony; both by word of mouth and by the written word, not cursorily but often and fully, by means of plain and weighty arguments, so that these truths will strike the intellect and will be deeply engraved on their hearts."

Reverend John Fullerton, Rector of St. Mary's Academy and College, and Reverend Todd Angele, Assistant to the Parish at St. Mary's, followed this dictate from Pius XI in his encyclical letter Casti Connubii.

On January 28, the two priests held an all-day seminar of six conferences focusing on marriage and the relation between man and woman. With a parish of nearly 3,000 parishioners and around 100 baptisms annually, the family and marriage is a significant subject matter.

The seminar, therefore, was called Family Matters. The conferences focused on the nature of marriage, marriage preparation, the nature of family, the understanding of potential marriage and family problems, the sources of those problems, and the avoidance of them.

Several hundred parishioners, married, courting, and single, attended these conferences, which were, as Fr. Fullerton said in the opening seminar, to provide Catholic principles of marriage and the family.

Book Review: Marcel Lefebvre—The Biography

Bishop Tissier de Mallerais

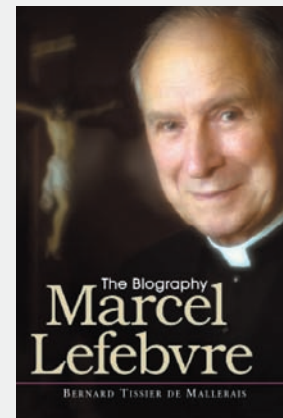

What will come about of the legacy of Archbishop Lefebvre? This question is on the lips of Catholics worldwide who have followed closely or loosely the struggle of Tradition in the last 40 years. The Society of St. Pius X, created by Archbishop Lefebvre in 1970, has held the flag of the Mass and doctrine of all times before Rome. The time may be propitious to delve into the inner thought of its founder, following the biography of his close associate, Bishop Tissier.

Doubtless, the work reads like an epic novel about kings and villains. It shows a man standing like a rock in the midst of a tormented society revamping its past. It reads also like a drama of a man of faith confronted with a Fifth Column within the ranks of his beloved Church. The grand names of Africa, Rome and France come under the spotlight and reveal many colorful details of Roman diplomacy, African politics and mission work. We follow with profuse details the tragedy of the Third World War and the principles at stake which opposed the liberal faction to the Roman Curia.

The last section is dedicated to the work of the Iron Bishop, the SSPX. The great African missionary decided it was high time to resume his former work of training priests according to the multisecular tradition, with the Mass of all times in Latin, with Aquinas and the Church Fathers, and the ascetic discipline. This decision was to count without the new spirit now dominant under St. Peter's dome and, after the forbidden Mass, there came the forbidden society, and even the forbidden bishops.

This compelling biography sheds much light on the mystery of a not ordinary man who was so extraordinarily sure of himself only because he was absolutely sure of God.

The Death of Christian Culture

Dr. John Senior deals with the root causes of how and why Christian culture is dying. He approaches the subject through an in-depth study of literature, culture, history, and religion, to alert citizens of the West of what they stand to lose, especially as education ceases to be about the truth and becomes merely an exercise in bureaucracy and ticket-punching. Ultimately, Senior warns that the cultural, literary, artistic, and social treasures of classical and Christian civilization must be preserved and lived, lest they be lost forever.

The Restoration of Christian Culture

In this compelling sequel to his well-known book, The Death of Christian Culture, Dr. Senior answers this question with a genuinely realistic, but no less resounding yes.

The Restoration of Christian Culture continues warning of the ongoing extinction of the cultural patrimony of ancient Greece and Rome, medieval Europe, and the early-modern West, owing to the bureaucratization, mechanization, and standardization of life today. Beyond this, Senior offers challenging and provocative ideas for recapturing and living the cultural traditions of classical and Christian history.

The Cristeros

In the early part of the 20th Century, Masonic, Marxist revolutionaries, who were nothing less than the enemies of Jesus Christ, seized control of the government of Mexico and attempted to destroy the Church. In the midst of the terror, courageous priests clandestinely made their way through the countryside dispensing the sacraments and ministering to the Mexican faithful. As these holy priests fulfilled the duties of their divine vocations, an army of laymen rose up and challenged the godless government. They were the Cristeros, and this is their story.

Catechism of the Crisis

What can faithful Catholics do in the midst of an unprecedented crisis in the Church and in the world, and especially today in the midst of more blatant and open Christophobia? The first thing we have to do is understand the truths of the Catholic faith, and to understand the errors, both inside and outside the Church which threaten that same Faith.

This excellent work by Fr. Gaudron will help us to grasp the true roots of the modern crisis and the gravity of the problems affecting us. Originally published in order to both solidify our understanding of the principles behind the crisis and as an aid to help those who do not see the gravity of the current situation, this work follows the traditional catechetical format: Each question is followed by a succinct response, and then by a series of more detailed questions and answers that justify and elaborate the general answer. 248pp. Color Softcover.
